Judge Wright and "Fighting Bob." (Times-Union.)

On the 8th inst Judge A. O. Wright received a letter from his old shipmate Admiral Robley D. Evans, in response to one written him a few days before discussing the battle of Fort Fisher, where the two men met in deadly combat in 1865. After answering the judge's question, the admiral wrote:

"Sunday night I shall leave here (Washington) for Fort Monroe and will look out for your wireless when passing the coast of Florida."

The Judge sent the following message to him last Tuesday night: "Letter received. Godspeed; a successful trip and a safe return."

The wireless station at Savannah reported yesterday to Judge Wright that the message was delivered on board the flagship Connecticut on Tuesday night at 11:30 after the admiral had retired, and should a reply be sent it would be from a point farther south.

These two old veterans, representing the Blue and the Gray, keep up a correspondence and the judge is very, proud of having so distinguisher a correspondent.
